STEPHEN DEXTER ATWOOD

Stephen Dexter Atwood

Dexter Atwood, the name by which he was best known, was born in that section of Carver called Pope's Point, March 30, 1856, a son of Stephen and Elizabeth Atwood. After leaving school he learned the trade of iron moulder which he followed during his early years in the works of the Ellis Foundry Co., and a short period of service in Maine. The monotony of the work was irksome to him, and attracted by the possibilities of cranberry culture he left his trade and began operations as a cranberry grower on the large New Meadows tract. By persistent labor he converted a good part of that waste into productive bogs and beautiful parks, and with one of the best equipped cranberry bogs he found his place at the head of those engaged in this industry.

He established a beautiful home in town and had planned to add to its attractive features by improving the surroundings. Mr. Atwood never found time to be lonely, and he never felt a longing to live in some other place; and so he can be considered only as a loyal citizen of Carver.

He manifested an interest in public affairs, and any movement for community betterment found him a friend. He served on the Boards of Selectmen, Overseers of Poor and Assessors from 1907 to 1910, declining further service except as an Assessor, which position he held at the time of his death. He was one of the oldest members of Wankinquoah Lodge, I. O. O. F. of Wareham, and a charter member of South Carver Grange. In this latter organization he found a congenial field.

But as a friend and associate he made the deepest impression. Others can raise cranberries and assess taxes, but no one can be Dexter Atwood. He was a strong individuality; he was a workman of orderly habits and always busy; he was a persistent devotee of business; but he had a sense of humor, and he could be switched from the most serious discussion by a joke. No truer eulogy of him can be spoken than this compliment of a neighbor: "If anyone, in an emergency, wanted anything, Dexter had it, he knew where it was, it was in good condition, and he would gladly lend it."

He died in the service of the Town August 2, 1915.

REPORT OF THE LOCAL MOTH SUPERINTENDENT

In 1915 the problem of the gypsy moth in the cranberry bogs proved a serious one. This is the most serious feature of the moth situation in the Town of Carver today. More bogs were infested this year and more work was done, nearly 10 tons of lead being used.

Both of the town sprayers were in steady use through June and a great deal of the wood adjoining bogs was sprayed to protect the vines from invasion from caterpillars. Over 40 bogs were more or less eaten and in certain cases the vines were greatly injured. Your superintendent was present recently at several conferences held by the committee of the Cranberry Growers Association with State Forester Rane and a plan of work was decided upon for 1916.

Briefly this provides that the State shall furnish sufficient funds to the Town of Carver to protect the bogs which are threatened with injury by the gypsy moth in the surrounding woods.

The work comprises cutting and burning in the winter time to a safe distance back from the shore, the area to be cut over depending on the circumstances of the particular case, and spraying in May and June. The amount of spraying to be done this year cannot be stated definitely at this writing.

In addition it is to be expected that in the coming spring various bogs out of the many in the town not as yet known to be infested will be threatened.

We are promised by the State such additional light spraying outfits at half cost suited to work around the bogs as will be needed.

In addition to the pupils in the elementary schools there are 24 in the High School, 12 boys and 12 girls; 9 first year, 10 second year, 2 third year, 2 fourth year, making a total in all schools of 210.

The teachers beginning the fall term in September, 1915, were Miss Helen C. Hodsdon of Fryeburg, Me., North Grammar; Mrs. Mary D. Chapman of Kingston, North Primary; Miss Miriam H. Braley of Middleboro, Center Grammar; Miss Alice M. Russell of Northampton, Center Primary; Mrs. Marion Shaw of Carver, South Grammar; Miss Amy L. Felton of Norton, South Primary; Miss Elizabeth Tillson of Carver, Bates Pond; Miss Cora P. Shannon of Florenceville, N. B., Pope's Point; Miss Mildred E. Dunne of Canton, East Carver; Miss Viola Merrifield of Boston, and Miss Marion Hutchins of Fitchburg, High School.

There were but two changes in teachers at the beginning of this school year. Miss Bailey resigned her position at the North Primary, after three years of very successful work, to become principal of a school in Brockton; and Miss Field resigned her position at Pope's Point. There has been one change during the winter term. Mrs. Shaw resigned at the South Grammar, and was succeeded by Miss Ina Durling.

There seems to be a tendency towards a decrease in frequency of changes. One cause of this is a tacit understanding with some superintendents who formerly poached severely on our territory, that if they can be informed of promising teachers, who have taught long enough to prove their worth, and who are about to leave our employ, they will not attempt to induce them to leave sooner.

We are able to get good normal graduates in nearly all our schools. As the schools become better known, graduates are frequently advised by the normal school teachers to begin work with us; and students in normal schools keep well informed through those who are teaching of conditions in different towns.

We have at present good schools. Teachers and pupils are interested in their work, and parents are interested in helping them. The work of the teachers is to teach the subjects of the school curriculum, and train the children in habits of obedience, courtesy, industry and responsibility, while they are in school; but they can not accomplish this unless these habits are first formed at home. It is in teaching these habits that parents can help to make the schools successful; they can prepare the children for the work of the teachers. During the past summer I visited the Provincial Normal School at Fredericton, N. B., where a summer session was held for French students who needed practice in English. I was invited by one of the professors to visit his room. On entering the room the students rose and remained standing until we were seated, and did the same when we left. Throughout the visit to the school the courtesy and good manners of the students was marked. On speaking of it to the professor he said that courtesy and good manners was a regular subject of the curriculum of the school. I have two graduates of the school teaching for me, one in this town. The same courtesy is shown by their pupils when I visit their schools. We would do well to learn a lesson from these Canadian people.

During the past two years some revision of the course of study has been made. The purpose of this is to eliminate those things that are not essential, and to teach more thoroughly those that are; also to postpone the teaching of some things until later in the course, when they can be better understood by the pupils. The course in grammar has been revised. As revised it was used in a few schools the past year, to learn what changes and corrections were necessary before adopting it for general use. The course is intended to give a statement and explanation of such facts of grammar as children of elementary school age need to understand and make use of in writing and speaking English. A further study of grammar should be left until the high school. The course has been printed, and is now in use in all schools in the district. The results of its use are encouraging. It is necessary that any course be printed in suitable form for use by the teachers. When this is done for the whole district together the cost to one town is small.

A new course of study in geography is in preparation by members of the Southeastern Massachusetts Superintendents' Association, which is expected to be ready next fall.

A state course of study for the first six grades is being prepared by a group of superintendents selected by the State Board of Education. It has been completed in some subjects, and is being used for trial. A part of the course in arithmetic is completed. I have had so much as is completed printed for our use by the state, and it will be in use this winter. While it is called a state course, it is not intended to make it compulsory in any school, except where no other course is provided by the superintendent.

A course in Community Civics, a comparatively new study, is introduced in the High School this year. If our high school is kept up to its present standard, it is probable that it will be granted the privilege of certificating to Massachusetts normal schools those pupils who maintain an average rank of B throughout their course.

The most needed addition to our present school course is hand work, including drawing, taught by a special teacher. It can not be taught successfully by the general teacher, in addition to her other work, which needs all her time and attention. I have watched the results of such teaching in part of the district for several years; and have made a considerable study of the training of the hand, the reasons for it, and the time when it should be done. After fifteen years of study, and watching children, I find the one thing that I have learned in all that time which stands out more clearly than anything else is the value of teaching children to use their hands, and with them their eyes, in connection with all studies, whether they be arithmetic or Latin, and the need of beginning it early. An old Greek philosopher said some thousands of years ago that the only thing that made the creation of man possible was the possession of hands and the power of manipulation. A modern American philosopher said that the old Greek did not exaggerate, when we consider that among all animal life on the earth, the only mammal that was capable of becoming human was the one that possessed hands, and could manipulate.

The comparative record of attendance for the past three years is given in the following table, in which the schools are arranged in the order of their attendance for the past year.

REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES OF PUBLIC LIBRARY

It is with pleasure we announce the purchase of 150 new books during the past year and we believe they are being very much appreciated by the patrons of the library. Owing to the late arrival of part of same it will be impossible to have them all listed in this report.

For the accommodation of the patrons at the north and south ends of the town we propose to establish branch libraries in the near future.

We recommend that the dog fund be appropriated for the expenses the coming year.
