SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

To the School Committee of Carver:

Schools have felt the effect of the war equally with other kinds of business. Those employing workers in any business know the difficulty of securing them. War work drew many from teaching, and doubtless many will return to it later, but they are not doing so yet. This is not the only cause of the scarcity of teachers. A less number of young women and an exceedingly small number of young men seem to be preparing for teaching. One of the state normal schools that formerly had an enrollment of between one and two hundred students now numbers but two men and twenty-six women. The normal schools now accept certificates from approved high schools in lieu of entrance examinations. A number of certificates were received by one normal school last spring, but several to whom they were granted did not enter the school in the fall. The principal wrote to those who failed to appear asking if they would state their reasons for it. One of the replies shows what seems to be a growing feeling among young women who might be expected to prepare for teaching. It said, "I have watched young women who have gone into commercial and related work. Their employers recognize the increased cost of living, and have raised their salaries willingly to meet the changed conditions. I have also watched those who are teaching. In many cases, perhaps in most, salaries have been raised somewhat, but in most cases it seems to have been done grudgingly. I do not care to put myself in a position to have to submit to this attitude toward myself and my work on the part of the public. Therefore I did not enter the normal school." It is unfortunate that this feeling prevails, for it prevents many young women who would make successful teachers from entering the work.

Thirteen positions, throughout the superintendency district of which Carver is a part, that were to become vacant at the end of the summer term were filled before its close. Three vacancies occurred during the summer vacation, two during the fall term, and one at the winter vacation. But as these were the total changes for four towns, under present conditions, they are not excessive. Unfortunately fifty per cent. of the resignations occurred in Carver. The teachers who resigned were Miss Mary McGrath at the South Grammar school, now teaching in Fall River; Miss Bertha Richmond at Bates Pond, now teaching in Raynham; Mrs. Mildred Shaw at the Centre Grammar school, now teaching in Rochester; Mrs. Emma Smith at the North Primary, now teaching in Raynham; Mrs. Helen C. Griffith at the North Grammar school, not teaching; Miss Zelda Goodwin at Popes Point, not now teaching; and Miss Mary Smith who resigned from the South Grammar school at the end of the first week of the fall term, on account of sickness. It was impossible to find a satisfactory teacher for this school at the salary offered, and it was necessary to close the school. The Bates Pond school was closed at the end of the summer term. The pupils above the third grade in the Bates Pond and south schools are carried to the Center Grammar and Intermediate schools. The intermediate school is in the old primary building. All pupils are now in five schools as shown in the following table.

Schools: Grades,	I	II	III	IV	V	VI	VII	VIII	IX	totals
Center Grammar,							12	4	8	24
Center Intermediates,				11	6	12				29
North Primary,	12	7	5	3	7					34
South Primary,	11	7	8							26
Popes Point,	5	0	7	0	5	1				18
	28	14	20	14	18	13	12	4	8	131

There were 131 pupils in the elementary schools and twenty-four in the High School on January 1, 1919. Two years ago there were 162 and four years ago 222 in the elementary schools.

There are not enough pupils at the Center for either a grammar or a primary school. There are not enough pupils for a grammar school in any section of the town. The grammar and intermediate pupils should be carried from the north and south schools to the Center, as is being done now, or all pupils at the Center should be carried to the north and south schools. The plan that is in operation now is the better of the two, because if the pupils from the center of the town were divided between the north and south schools each teacher would have, supposing they were divided evenly, twenty-eight pupils and five grades, whereas if the pupils from the north and south schools were carried to one locality, while each teacher would have the same number of pupils she would have but three grades, IV, V, VI for one and VII, VIII, IX for the other. The advantage to the pupils of having a smaller number of grades to a teacher admits of no argument. No better plan, if we are looking for the good of the children, could at present be made. The intermediate school, now in the old primary building, should be in the old town hall, if the town wishes to use it for school purposes.

Where formerly we had nine schools we now have five. Should we go back to nine schools, if we paid teachers the lowest salary allowed by law, $550, the cost of teaching would be $4,950, instead of $2,750 as at present, a difference of $2,200. A minimum salary law for public school teachers, fixing the minimum salary at $550, went into effect on January 1, 1919. This is the lowest salary that can be paid to public school teachers. Teachers of any successful experience can not be hired for that salary. I tried to secure three teachers at that salary this winter, but was unable to do so. I got one for $600. If we should go back to last year's plan of two schools in each section of the town and one at Popes Point and Bates Pond the extra cost of teaching, provided we could get teachers at the minimum salary, would be $1,650, and we would not get as good results as under the present plan.

The number of pupils in the elementary schools is twenty per cent. less than the average for five years, but the percentage of all pupils attending high school remains the same as the average for the same period, sixteen per cent. In most cities and towns high school attendance has fallen off during the war. The average number of pupils in the elementary schools, the number finishing the ninth grade and the number in the senior class of the high school for the past five years is shown thus:

Average number of pupils in elementary schools, 165.

Average number of pupils finishing the elementary course, 14.

Average number of pupils finishing the high school course, 4.

Children are in the elementary schools nine years. If the average given above holds for nine years then 126, or seventy-six per cent. of the total number would finish the elementary course; and if an average of four finish the high school each year then thirty-six, or twenty-two per cent. of the total would finish the high school course. This is shown by a graph thus:

Elementary pupils,	100%
Finishing elementary course,	76%
Finishing high school course,	22%

While this is probably a fair average high school attendance for towns not maintaining a high school, it is not as large as it should be in a town having a high school, and to which transportation is provided. Nothing but inability to do the school work in a reasonable number of years should debar a child from getting at least an elementary school education, and only the strongest reasons should deprive him of a high school education. If young people could look ahead ten or fifteen years and see how much they will then need education and training more would go beyond the elementary school. The difference in value of the product of a group of trained and untrained men is as great as the difference in value of the product of a farm worked with the selfbinder and the tractor and one worked with the scythe and the tooth harrow. It may seem that we are taxed heavily enough now for education and training, but the cost is returned many times over in the producing power of those trained. We do not readily see it because education is such a long time process. Unfortunately for rural communities much of the benefits of their education goes to the cities and large towns. It is this that should put the burden of education on the State. As good work is being done in the high school as at any time since I have known it.
